COLD WAVE BROKEN BY SNOW FALL

Warm Breath of To-day's Storm Drives Zero Temperature Off to Sea.

Boston is thankful today for the snow and gradual thaw which is dissipating the earnest cold wave which gripped the city and suburbs yesterday.

Bostonians went to bed last night silverlashed by another struggle with the cold.

But they found the air warmer and filled with snow, cleared for the relief, they prepared for their daily work.

The delay in suburban train service which made the word "railroad" a jest and a cartoon, yesterday, was not so distant today, as the frost is made an effort at running on.

The Thaw is particularly agreeable about the water front and out in the harbor, where they suffered several casualties. Stories of distress are being told along Atlantic avenue and Commercial avenue today among the fishermen and sailors and it is expected that today will bring in additional tales of privation on the sea during the freezing weather.

THE WEATHER.
Snow and warmer to-night.
Saturday cloudy to partly cloudy. Colder in the evening or night. Light southerly to easterly winds.
High tide—8:28 a. m., 9:02 p. m.
Sun rises—7:05, sets 4:48.

FIND WOMAN SLAIN IN WEST END TENEMENT

Mrs. Ellen Thomas was found dead in a tenement at No. 8 Cypress street, West End, yesterday. Medical Examiner M. J. Connelley, who was called to the scene, found the body of a woman with her neck cut with blood on the floor. The body was found in a room which had been occupied by a woman who had been arrested and taken to the police station at No. 8 Cypress street.

"I Seek No Revenge; I Will Not Testify," Says Evelyn's Mother

BY BOSTON AMERICAN LEASED WIRE.
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 25.—(Boston by indignation, an ill that she could scarcely hold her head. Mrs. Charles J. Holman, mother of Florence Evelyn Nesbit, to-day repudiated the assertions that she would testify against Harry Thaw. She had just returned from a mysterious trip.

Mrs. Holman signed the following interview, exclusively for the Hearst newspapers, at her home in Brooklyn, just outside of Pittsburgh:

"The stories that I am seeking vengeance are absolutely false. There is no truth in any of them, and I am going to stay right here in Pittsburgh. Under no consideration will I be present at the Thaw trial, either as a witness or spectator.

"There is nothing that could tempt me to cry for vengeance against any one, let alone my own flesh and blood. That is not my disposition. I am going to let them fight it out alone, and if there's anything that I know, they will never learn it from me.

"Under no consideration could I be induced to take the stand for the prosecution in this case, and since for all, I ask the Hearst newspapers to make this public to the world.

"How the newspapers can say that I went out of the city on Saturday night to be present at the trial is more than I can say. I have never been in communication with any one but the staff correspondent of the New York Evening Journal during this whole affair, and there is no one else that I would trust.

"I know you will want what I have to say exactly as I say it, and for that reason I have refused to deal with other newspapers.

"Let me add once again, I have not been, nor will I be, in New York at the Thaw trial.

"Vengeance is not to be mine in this instance."

—MRS. CHARLES J. HOLMAN.

BROTHER AGAINST HIS OWN SISTER FOR THAW'S LIFE

Howard Nesbit Relied Upon by Prosecution It Is Asserted to Off-set Testimony of Wife in Trial of Slayer of White—Thaw Expects Jury To-day.

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—That Howard Nesbit will take the stand and testify for the prosecution in the trial of Harry K. Thaw, while Evelyn Nesbit Thaw will bare her heart to the world in an endeavor to prevent her husband from going to the electric chair, thus bringing brother squarely against sister, is the amazing and unprecedented situation that will later be presented, it was asserted to-day, in the remarkable fight that is being made on one side to punish and on the other to save the slayer of Stanford White.

Should young Nesbit appear in favor of Stanford White and show the same callous demeanor that he has evinced since the trial began lawyers declare, it would react in favor of Thaw, because if the hearts of the jurors are to be touched it becomes more and more apparent that the appeal of suffering in the face of the slender girl wife will accomplish it.

Mrs. Charles J. Holman, in an interview with a representative of the BOSTON AMERICAN at Pittsburgh to-day, declared that she would not testify against Thaw. She also asserted that she was going to remain at home during the trial, and not come to the side of her daughter to help and comfort her.

Young Nesbit, before he went to the criminal courts building today, denied the rumor that he had quarreled with his mother and father to-day, presumably over the case, he said.

"I want to deny absolutely that my mother or my step-father and I have quarreled. The report is absolutely ridiculous for we are on the best of terms."

After Thaw had breakfast and was ready to make his daily visit across the Bridge of Sighs, he said he was confident that the jury would be seated today and that the trial would begin in earnest Monday morning or Tuesday at the latest.

"I have the utmost confidence," he said in a note to the reporters, "that I will be speedily acquitted."

MAY OBJECT TO HARNEY.
The lawyers for Thaw will probably seek today to have Henry C. Harney, the 6th juror, removed from the jury box, because he is a member of the jury who has been accused of murder in the first degree, and is a member of the jury who has been accused of murder in the first degree, and is a member of the jury who has been accused of murder in the first degree.

Harney acted as a juror in the trial of Edward Peckars, a Jew, who was accused of murdering a woman, and was sentenced to hang for it. Harney was one of the jury who found Peckars guilty, and he was one of the jury who sentenced him to hang.

Harney was one of the jury who found Peckars guilty, and he was one of the jury who sentenced him to hang. Harney was one of the jury who found Peckars guilty, and he was one of the jury who sentenced him to hang.

What Hawthorne Says of the "Unwritten Law"

What Hawthorne's review of the trial, see Page 2.

The unwritten law is the ancient justice, no more to be eradicated from the human mind than hunger and thirst from the human stomach. It reveals the inevitable imperfection of our legislative enactments, which are constructed for the average case, whereas there never is any average case, but only particular ones.

Nothing is saved in the books about the unchangeable sense of injury felt by a man who has been vitally wronged in his mortal relations, as affecting his actions in the circumstances. But we all know that actions are motivated by feelings, and there is no feeling known to the human bosom more urgent than the one referred to.

—Julian Hawthorne.

THAW'S MOTHER IN NERVOUS COLLAPSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 25.—At the hotel where Mrs. Thaw, physically and mentally remarkably strong, has been for some time, it was learned to-day that she had suffered a nervous collapse. It was learned that the other members of the Thaw family, who have been vitally wronged in their mortal relations, as affecting their actions in the circumstances, but we all know that actions are motivated by feelings, and there is no feeling known to the human bosom more urgent than the one referred to.

—Julian Hawthorne.

GRAND WED FIREMAN, HURT ON DUTY, AT HOSPITAL BEDSIDE

Declares She Wants to Help Him Live and Not Hinder Him and Place Is His Now.

Date Was Long Ago Set for February 14 and She Will Not Hurt Him by Disappointing Him.

DECLARATION that she will go anywhere with the man of her choice, brace any danger to be at his side and suffer any deprivation that she may be his life companion, partly Gertrude M. Blackwell, of No. 105 Dudley street, Rosbury, says that rather than postpone her wedding on February 14 next she will stand at the bedside of her husband-to-be in Boston hospital and there take the solemn vows which will make her a wife.

By Gertrude M. Blackwell. I was luck to postpone a wedding. I believe, and Fred MacDonald, the brave man I am to be married to, has had enough bad luck without my bringing him any more. I want to help Fred in life rather than hinder him, and I'm going to marry him the day we meet next month, unless something beyond human power prevents.

Fred MacDonald is a fireman. He is connected with Knicker Company No. 22. His home is in Hyde Park avenue, Rosbury. Several weeks ago, while fighting a hard fire, he fell from the roof to the ground. His back was badly injured and he is unable to move.

It will not disappoint him. I don't suppose that he would have done anything but what I did. I am sure that he would have done the same thing for me. I am sure that he would have done the same thing for me.

TERRE HATTE, Ind., Jan. 25.—Telephon advice from Merion, south of this city, states that the Watson river here, near a small town, broke yesterday and the 500 people of the valley had to flee for their lives.
